

LABOR MEN TO AID G. W. UNIVERSITY

Federation and Local Central Body to Indorse Trusttees' Plans.

OFFER OF FACULTY
PLEASES TRUSTEES

Officials Think Instructors Will Not Have to Serve on Half Pay.

George Washington University in its present financial crisis is to have the earnest support of Central Labor Union and the American Federation of Labor.

These two organizations, according to their representatives, will not only go on record in a few days as indorsing the university's movement to continue its present high standard of education, but will join with other organizations of Washington and lend every aid within their means.

That the university may depend upon these labor organizations was the assurance given last night to Dr. Richard D. Harlan, special representative of George Washington University, who attended a conference in the office of Secretary Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, and which was also attended by a committee of three from the Central Labor Union. This conference lasted several hours, and the labor men were impressed with the explanations of the conditions made by Dr. Harlan.

Entitled to Benefits.
Dr. Harlan will confer with the officers of Central Labor Union in a few days, after which it is expected that the legislative committee of that body will be directed to advocate the application of the Morrill act to the George Washington University. Those who were at last night's conference declared with much emphasis that this institution was entitled to the benefits of the Morrill act, which would mean an annual appropriation of about $50,000. These men proposed to use their efforts in impressing upon Congress to include George Washington University in the act.

A pleasant surprise was accorded the members of the board of trustees of the university when it met late yesterday afternoon and learned of the offer of the faculty of the law and medical departments to work on half pay during the next scholastic year. If necessary, in order to help the school over what they term a trying situation. The trustees were much impressed with this evidence of loyalty and devotion.

This offer also was particularly gratifying because it indicates that the faculty is not being torn apart with dissension, but, instead, is a strong evidence of the restoration of confidence. This, the trustees believe, should inspire the public of the Capital to join the movement to help the university.

Salaries Are Low.
It is not considered likely that it will be found necessary to accept the offer of the law and medical departments' faculty. It is explained that the salaries of these men are at an extremely low point, and to cut them in half would mean that practically every teacher and instructor would be compelled to seek means of support elsewhere, and regard his position with the university as subordinate to another form of remuneration. At its meeting the board of trustees assumed a stand of self defense in relation to the proposed reduction of salaries. Attention was called to the fact that the disbursement of this fund was not commenced by the officials of trustees of the present university corporation. The board contends that the wedge was entered by the original board of trustees in 1888, of which W. W. Conner, donor of the fund, was a leading member.

A statement bringing out these points and intended to clarify the situation and to place the facts before the public correctly, was issued by the university. The statement was signed by Senator Gallinger, chairman of the District Committee of the Senate, and to Representative Doolittle of Illinois. Much stress was laid upon the reorganization of the board of trustees and its endeavors to save the university and to conduct it on the highest plane and most business-like manner.

Chamber to Help.
Considerable hope is placed by the trustees in the efforts being made by the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade to inspire the public to contribute to the fund necessary to conduct the school.

The Chamber's committee has adopted the following public appeal:

"The committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade to maintain the George Washington University on its present educational basis, appeals to the members of the Chamber and the Board of Trade of Washington to contribute at once to the fund for that purpose."

"The university is waiting to know what the citizens of Washington will do, and must decide very soon upon its program for next year. That program depends upon the response of the citizens. In addition to what has already been subscribed $25,000 will be required to continue it with the suspension of certain apartments. The university will do all that the citizens of Washington will permit."

"If the city had no such university, and could have one by raising many times the amount suggested the citizens would doubtless raise the sum required. As it is they have this university and its reputation established, a credit to the city and need only do for it what the citizens of Baltimore did for Johns Hopkins in similar circumstances. Do not wait to be solicited, but send in your subscription to any of the undersigned."

UNIVERSITY NAMED IN MRS. LOOMIS' WILL

George Washington University is to be the residuary legatee of the estate of Mrs. Mary Williams Loomis, whose late husband, Dr. Lafayette C. Loomis, also named that institution a beneficiary under his will.

The principal part of the estate will become a trust legacy for the benefit of Mary Augusta Johnson, a niece of Mrs. Loomis, and at her death will revert to the educational institution. The fund thus created is left to the Union Trust Company as executor, and the will provides that when the university receives the fund, which was established under the will of Mrs. Loomis' husband, should the university not accept the legacy, Mrs. Loomis' niece and nephew are to determine to what institution the money shall go.

MARRIES SICK MAN TO BE HIS NURSE

NEW YORK, June 16.—In order that she might nurse her fiancé during a severe case of scarlet fever, Miss Annie Higbie Smith consented to marry George O. Elmore, of Litchfield, Conn.

The Rev. Henry A. Dexter, a local clergyman, was asked if he were afraid to perform a marriage ceremony with one of the principals afflicted with scarlet fever, but he did not hesitate a moment. Therefore, the marriage was performed at once with Elmore ill in bed. Miss Smith and Mr. Elmore were to have been married at Grace Episcopal Church at Orange, New Jersey, yesterday before a large gathering of friends.
